Education Isn't Everything, If You Own Oil Land

BIG TALK DEPT.: Right now it looks as if of Timmo took the wrong course in life. Back when I had a beardless face and lots of dampness behind the ears, I turned my head from Eldorado toward Harrisburg, and I have been here since.

I should have bought a farm northeast of Eldorado, mineral rights and all. I know the ordeal would have been great for Timmo, getting up early and going to the fields, but the rewards would have been great. Look at the oil wells up in there now. Maybe the education I got to fit me for this newspaper job should not have been obtained and I should have been a dirt farmer with oil mixed in. More oil than dirt. Let 'er drip.

And just to prove that maybe education isn't EVERYTHING, I noticed in this paper that a junior high school principal was elected FIRST vice president of the Egyptian Chapter of Credit Unions and that a professor at Southern Illinois university who holds his doctor's degree was elected SECOND vice president.

EDITORIAL: The city police report that ever so often, some time after midnight, boys pull up a stop sign at the four-way stop at McKinley and Sloan.

This means that the street department must leave its regular work, go out to Sloan and McKinley, and re-install the post. The sign is usually hidden around somewhere, usually back in an alley, and it takes time, too, to find it.

Now the boys are having their fun. They are playing a game with the night police. They're liable to get caught one of these nights and then it won't be so funny for the boys — and their parents.

But the serious thing about it all is this: Suppose some local motorist drives up to one of the stops, sees a car coming, and assumes it will stop at the intersection. The local motorist then pulls out into the intersection. But suppose the car approaching is driven by a motorist unfamiliar with this crossing. The stop sign has been removed and he figures he has the right-of-way. He keeps going at a normal rate of speed into the intersection and a crash results.

Suppose somebody gets hurt. Suppose it's a lot of car damage. At any rate such a thing could happen easily just because some boys were having their fun with the police. It probably would result in a bunch of remorseful consciences.

WE GROW 'EM ODDER DEPT.: Mrs. Elsie Harrison went down to Simpson and brought back with her an unusual egg which is now on Timotheus' desk. It was laid by a hen belonging to Mrs. Mel Simpson of Simpson (that's right) and Mrs. Harrison brought it up for Timotheus to inspect.

The egg has a regular body, only smaller than normal, and then quite a neck. One way you look at the egg, it has the shape of a gourd. Place it another way and it looks like a swan. It's really odd.

CPA Discusses Income Tax in Kiwanis Address

Changes in income tax forms for individual returns were explained to members of the Kiwanis club last night at the Masonic temple by James Clananah of Zeigler, a certified public accountant with an office at Herrin.

Mr. Clananah is a member of the speakers' bureau of Southern Illinois university and represented the Southern Illinois chapter of CPAs which has about 30 members in the area from East St. Louis to Cairo.

He discussed many changes in the new forms which are beneficial to various tax payers.

The club last night endorsed the action being taken by local civic clubs to take politics out of election township park board members.

Guests at last night's meeting were Bob Rushing, guest of Bill Brashears; Russell Malan, guest of Fred Armistead; Charles Cagle, guest of Ed Creek, and Charles Taylor, guest of Ronnie Dorge.

Tornadoes Hit Three States; at Least 30 Dead

Cabins and School Buildings Flattened in Mississippi

TUNICA, Miss. (UP)—Tornadoes left at least 30 dead today in the ruins of school buildings and share croppers' shanties that tumbled down in the storm's rampage across three southern states.

Officials feared the death toll would rise as National Guardsmen searched splintered cabins and flattened schools on Mississippi plantations for more bodies. More than half those found were children.

The black funnel jammed hospitals with 133 mangled or stunned victims and drove more than 500 persons from their homes before blowing out in Alabama.

Several frightened Negro school children saw the big twister approaching a cotton plantation at Robinsonville, Miss., and crawled to safety in the hollow trunk of an "old tree" that long had been dead.

Bodies Everywhere
They escaped injury, but at least three were killed in their school and many were injured. Highway Patrolman Don Spencer said.

Spencer and Patrolman Harold Kidd were among the first to reach the Robinsonville scene.

"Bodies were scattered all over the place," Spencer said. "Two cars had been blown from in front of the school into fields several hundred yards away."

Chief Investigating Officer L. C. Hicks of the Mississippi Highway Patrol said it appeared the fatality list would rise to "at least 35 or more."

The tornadoes broke down power lines as they bore down on two Arkansas plantations, leaped the Mississippi River and lashed six more plantations in Mississippi. There were no casualties in Arkansas but eight persons were injured in Alabama, where the storm was dissipated.

Dark As Night
Eula Irvin, 13, was in a Negro school building north of Robinsonville when the twister hit.

"We saw it coming and all tried to run out," Eula said. "The wind blew us back into the school and the roof began to fall."

"We got down on the floor and began crawling out. I grabbed a big piece of wood and held on for all I was worth. It was real scary. It got dark as night. Then all of a sudden it was gone and the sun was out again."

Several of the children in Eula's school were injured by the falling roof, but none was killed.

Some 100 injured were brought to the 25-bed Tunica Hospital. Others rushed to hospitals at Memphis, Tenn., 25 miles to the northeast, and to Clarksdale, Miss., 35 miles south of Tunica.

Notice Required Ten Days Before Township Caucus

Caucuses to determine nominees for town (township) offices to be elected at the April 5 town elections, are to be held between Feb. 14 and Feb. 24, according to a schedule of regulations for town government.

A notice of the caucus must be published in a newspaper at least ten days prior to the day of the caucus. The caucus may be by a meeting of party members, or by balloting. In some instances, party members and leaders determine the candidate and the will of the majority is accepted. Where more than one candidate seeks nomination to an office, balloting is supervised by the party.

Other dates in the schedule of town government include the following:

March 1, last day for filing certificates of nomination with Town Clerk.

March 5, last withdrawal date.

March 7, first day for filing applications for absent voter ballot.

March 28, last day for posting and publishing notices of election.

March 31, last day to apply by mail for absent voter's ballot.

April 2, last day to apply in person for absent voter's ballot.

April 4, last day for publishing ballot in newspaper.

April 5, annual town meeting and election.

'Pitch for Polio' On Square Saturday

The "Pitch for Polio" tubs, sponsored by the American Legion and VFW, will be out Saturday. In what will probably be the last March of Dimes activity in Harrisburg this campaign.

Tubs will be on the square and at the intersection of Rt. 45 and 13.

State Police, Carpentier's Tough Driver's License Law Attacked in Legislature

SPRINGFIELD (UP)—The Illinois state police and Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier's new "tough" driver's license law were under attack in the Illinois Legislature today.

The Legislative Motor Vehicles Commission was expected to take up both matters at its meeting when the Legislature reconvenes next Tuesday.

Members of the commission blasted the state police merit system, activities of the state police, and Carpentier's administration of the driver's license law at a meeting Tuesday.

Sen. James C. Monroe (D-Col. linsville) earlier had disclosed he will sponsor an Illinois Sheriffs Assn. bill limiting the state police to traffic enforcement. He said his bill will prevent the state police from such activities as gambling investigations and raids and criminal investigations that should be handled by sheriffs' offices.

Agree With Monroe
The sheriffs group, meeting at Peoria, lent weight to Monroe's stand. A number of the sheriffs expressed dissatisfaction with Gov. William G. Stratten's proposal to increase the size of the state police force.

The sheriffs said state police are moving into the field of crime investigation, which is under the jurisdiction of the sheriff's office. They said state police should stick to traffic enforcement.

State Police Supt. Phil M. Brown told the sheriffs that state police aren't usurping sheriffs' authority and said his force was anxious to cooperate with local officials.

The Members of the Motor Vehicle Laws Commission launched their attack on state police after they were asked to back bills by the Safety Department boosting the pay of the force from patrolman to superintendent and increasing the number of policemen.

"Is there anything in those bills about keeping state policemen in the highways where they belong," Rep. David Hunter (R-Rockford) asked. "They are always getting publicity for chasing bank robbers, making gambling raids, and the other day I read where they solved a blackmail case. Why don't they stick to the job of traffic enforcement."

Objects to Merit System

Sen. John P. Meyer (R-Danville) objected to the state police merit system. "The service of the state police force has steadily deteriorated in the last three years" since the merit system went into effect, he said.

The "merit system" put the hiring and promoting of state police under a merit board. It was one of former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson's most widely hailed accomplishments when passed by the 1949 Legislature.

The commission voted to ask Carpentier to testify next Tuesday about administration of the new driver's license law. This law in effect since July 1, 1952, has given the secretary mandatory and discretionary powers to revoke or suspend the driving licenses and permits for violations or lack of driving ability.

After the mains have been flushed out the water will clear up, Doom said.

For several days the water has been discolored, but water plant employees hoped it would clear up and that flushing of the mains would not be necessary as it takes approximately a half million gallons of water to complete the flushing.

However, instead of getting better the discoloring is getting worse, therefore the flushing of the mains will start soon.

Doom stated that under normal conditions the entire system of water mains would be flushed at least every six months. However, due to the severe water shortage the mains haven't been flushed in more than a year.

"We will start the flushing program at the plant and work out all over the city. We start at the plant so there will always be good water behind us," Doom said.

The work will be done at night and will require about four nights to complete the job.

Runoff from Tuesday's rainfall was sufficient to start the congo pump. Doom said the pump was started at 1:15 a. m. today. It was shut down nearly a week ago after cold weather froze the water in Middle Fork. Rainfall here was .65 inch.

During the winter months, when consumption of water is at its lowest point, the congo can pump more water into the reservoir than is consumed about 24 hours.

WSIL Telethon Polio Pledges Total $6,361

Saline County Has $2,883; Williamson Second with $1,343

The WSIL-TV Telethon for polio funds last night brought in pledges totaling $6,361.60, it was announced today by Harry Horning, who compiled the totals as they came in.

Pledges came from 17 southern Illinois counties, Indiana, Kentucky and other areas during the four and a half-hour show, which featured the orchestra and entertainers of Ted Weems.

Jim Bolen, WSIL-TV program director, was master of ceremonies for the show, which started at 8:15 p. m. and lasted until 12:45 a. m. During the program six telephones were kept busy taking calls from persons desiring to turn in pledges, and auctions of several items enhanced the proceedings.

Auctioned were two footballs, given by Chuck Hunsinger, 25 Ted Weems recordings donated by Mr. Weems, a giant yo-yo given by Sam the Yo-Yo man, and Jim Bolen's shorts.

The Weems band put on a splendid performance, featuring vocalists Bonnie Ann Shaw and Ray Sullenger, and comedian Red Ingle. One of the best numbers was a comic interpretation of "Temptation" by Miss Shaw and Ingle. Sullenger is a native of Herrin.

Saline Pledges Largest
In addition to the Weems show, the best of southern Illinois talent took part along with regular WSIL-TV stars.

Saline county had the largest amount in pledges, $2,883.67, followed by Williamson's $1,343.88.

Other pledges from southern Illinois: Edwards $5, Massac $2, Wayne $12, Perry $4, Pulaski $10, Union $10, Pope $6, Johnson $55, Hardin $17, Gallatin $218.50, Jefferson $12, Hamilton $739.50, White $193.55, Jackson $115, Franklin $543.50.

In addition $34 came in from Kentucky, $5 from Indiana and $55 from persons who gave addresses outside the above areas.

Last year a telethon brought in pledges of between $4,300 and $4,400.

Prospects Dim For Formosa Cease-Fire by UN

Reds Demand Total Surrender; Chiang Asks U. S. Guarantee

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—Prospects for a Formosan cease-fire under United Nations auspices dimmed considerably today.

Red China reiterated her demands for total surrender of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's island bastion, and it was indicated that if the Reds agreed to send representatives to a U. N. debate they would do so only in a role which would brand the United States an aggressor.

In London, India's Jawaharlal Nehru was reported actively seeking a General-type conference outside the United Nations—to settle the Formosan crisis.

On Formosa, the Nationalist Chinese—bitterly opposed both to a cease-fire and to the U. N. invitation to the Reds—were reported placing new conditions upon American plans for evacuation of the Tachen Islands.

Nationalists Make Demands

Despite their rapidly deteriorating military position on the small island chain off Red China's mainland, the Nationalists were reported demanding a public guarantee from the United States that Quemoy, Matsu and other islands will be jointly defended.

Nehru was said to have put forward his plan, which still is nebulous, at the current meeting of the British Commonwealth prime ministers.

His thought would not be to confine the conference to Formosa, but also to permit discussion of Korea, Germany and other trouble spots.

Red China's unyielding stand was said to have been made clear late Tuesday in a meeting between Nehru and Peiping's diplomatic representative in London.

Opposed to Two-China Deal
Reports of their meeting received from the British capital, said the Chinese diplomat, Huan Hsiang, made it clear in his conversations with Nehru that Peiping will not agree to any "two China's" settlement.

The belief was growing today that Peiping will accept the United Nations invitation to join in the cease-fire negotiations—but probably only for debate of Russia's proposal.

The Russian plan, which will be debated after the New Zealand proposal for a cease-fire, would demand return of Formosa and the Pescadores to Red China and would brand the United States an "aggressor" in the Formosan crisis.

Radio Peiping's broadcasts today hinted that the Peiping government probably will—in time—accept the U. N. invitation on some such terms.

While the diplomatic maneuvering went on behind the scenes, the "little war" in the Formosan strait appeared to be growing bigger.

Fighting Steps Up
Strong new Communist attacks were reported on Nationalist-held off-shore islands and an American destroyer was reported to have joined in escorting a shipload of evacuees from the invasion-periled Tachen Islands.

U. N. sources, meanwhile, were interested in speculation arising in various capitals around the world that the China crisis might be settled by private behind-the-scenes diplomatic negotiation.

The latest report came from Djakarta where the Indonesian Cabinet gave Prime Minister Ali Sastroamidjojo the go-ahead to try to line up the premiers of the five Colombo countries to try to mediate. The five powers are Indonesia, India, Burma, Ceylon and Pakistan.

It was understood Sastroamidjojo's plan called for a joint approach to the United States, Red China and Nationalist China thru secret negotiations.

Dispatches from London and Moscow also hinted at secret negotiations as a means of ending the crisis.

In Washington the United States was betting that Red China would avoid tangling with the powerful American forces in the Formosa area.

Ozark Airlines Inaugurates Service At Williamson Airport

HERRIN, Ill. (UP)—Ozark Airlines inaugurated the first scheduled airline service to the Williamson County Airport Tuesday with the arrival of a plane-load of airline officials and guests.

The plane landed about 10 minutes after its scheduled arrival time of 10:13 a. m. because of poor weather conditions on the flight from St. Louis. The plane continued on to Paducah, Ky., the present terminus of a route that eventually will end at Nashville, Tenn.

Punxsutawney Groundhog Gets Glimpse of Shadow

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (UP)—The Punxsutawney groundhog poked out of his burrow through six inches of new snow today, gave a snort of disgust and scooted underground again to sleep out six more weeks of winter.

The old fellow made only a brief appearance and "was lucky to see his shadow at all," Sam Light, president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club reported.

Up until almost the very moment the fabled phenomenon occurred at 8:51 a. m., it was still snowing atop nearby Canoe Ridge where the old Seer of Gobbler's Knob makes his home.

Light, a prominent district coal operator who receives the annual reading from the nation's most prominent weather forecaster, reported "the unexpected happened—a spot of sunshine broke through the clouds and almost scared the old boy to death."

As everyone well knows, if there had been no shadow, an early spring would have been assured.

Hershey Defends Draft Policy Against Critics

WASHINGTON (UP)—Drafting of scientists and farmers for military service was criticized today by two congressmen and defended by the draft director.

Rep. Burr P. Harrison (D-Va.) charged that the Selective Service System under its director, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, is moving in to control farm production.

Rep. Carl Henshaw (R-Calif.) said the present draft is responsible for a growing shortage of scientists in the vital race with Russia to develop scientific superiority. He appealed for his plan to prevent the armed services from "wasting" badly needed scientists by drafting them to "peel potatoes."

Their views—and Hershey's—were heard by the House Armed Services Committee which sought to wind up hearings on the administration's request for a four-year extension of the present draft law which expires June 30.

Harrison referred to a 1953 policy whereby local draft boards were ordered, in effect, to refuse deferments for farmers whose crops are surplus.

"This places in the hands of the Selective Service System power to control agricultural production of the nation," Harrison said. He said it means that a farmer's crop will be left to rot when he is unable to get a deferment because the crop is surplus.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) agreed the directive "takes away the discretion of local boards" and should be withdrawn.

Hershey replied that the directive is not binding on local boards and that Selective Service has no desire to determine what is or isn't surplus. He insisted that if deferments are determined on the basis of shortages, there is no reason why surpluses shouldn't be taken into account, too.

Hershey also defended the present system of deferring scientific and other students. He said he opposes any "escape plan" for scientists. Hershey said scientists in the Army "might have to peel potatoes once."

Democrats Hit Nomination Of Comptroller

By United Press
Democrats fired heavily today at President Eisenhower's nomination of Joseph Campbell as comptroller general—the "watchdog" over all government expenditures.

They got an assist from a Republican, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (Maine), who complained that Mr. Eisenhower did not consult Congress about the appointment.

Campbell resigned as a member of the Atomic Energy Commission to take a recess appointment to the $17,500-a-year job as head of the General Accounting Office. The office is an agency of Congress.

Democratic opposition to Campbell was voiced at a hearing of the Senate Government Operations Committee. Much of it stemmed from the fact that Campbell, as an AEC member, voted for the Dixon-Yates contract which is under attack by Democrats.

Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) testified vigorously for Campbell, calling him "unusually qualified in integrity, ability, courage, and devotion to public duty."

Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) noted that Campbell has had no experience in Congress and is not an attorney. Sens. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.) and Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) also oppose the nomination.

Says Use of U. S. Ground Forces Not Considered

President Expresses Determination to Keep Reds from Island

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower declared today that the United States is not going to let the Communists get Formosa.

The President at his news conference said at the same time that American policy in the present critical situation is to try honestly and hopefully to prevent a war.

But he expressed on several occasions the United States' determination to defend Formosa.

He also said that use of American ground forces in this connection has not been considered.

The President was asked to comment on the "great deal of uneasiness" about chances that the Far Eastern crisis would lead to fighting.

Wants Reds to Understand

Mr. Eisenhower replied that the purpose of administration policy is to make certain that no conflict occurs through a mistake in calculation by the other side regarding our concern for Formosa and our determination to defend it.

He said recent administration and congressional actions should make it crystal clear to friends and potential foes alike that the United States is not going to let the Communists get the great island barrier of Formosa. He said this Nationalist-held island is going to be kept intact. He referred to it as a spearhead extending out into the Pacific.

Mr. Eisenhower chose his words carefully and was clearly reluctant to talk at all about the Far Eastern situation.

He refused to say directly whether he is hopeful that war can be avoided. He replied on re-emphasizing that American intentions have been made absolutely clear and left it more up to the Communists to give the answer.

Evades 'Hot Pursuit' Question
He also turned down several opportunities to state that the United States would fight for the Nationalist-held off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

He steered away from disclosing whether orders to the 7th Fleet include "hot pursuit." This means that ships and planes could chase attacking Red forces back to the mainland and that planes could range even farther.

On Quemoy, Matsu and "hot pursuit," the President said he thought it was better not to talk and blueprint American policy further. He said he thought it would be wise to say nothing because a statement might muddy the water.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. — Matthew 11:28.

misses fear and weariness. Christ was a carpenter, he honored labor.
Labor did not make men unreachable according to his teaching.

In the Line of Duty

A 46-YEAR-OLD naval pilot, Lt.
John P. Moore, died recently in the line of duty. He wasn't fighting in any war, or even engaging in any military maneuvers. He was helping extend the world's frontiers deeper into the unknown.

Moore suffered fatal injuries
when the helicopter he was piloting crashed on an Antarctic ice plateau. He was a member of a party of observers and scientists who are making a preliminary survey to find suitable bases for major scientific explorations in 1957 and 1958.

This soft-spoken North Carolinian probably never dreamed he would see his life snuffed out in these icy wastes. But man's drive to push back the borders of the unknown is irresistible, and it carries with it terrible hazards.
Moore paid the price that is so often exacted in this difficult encounter.

First of the Fission Fleet

The date Jan. 17, 1955, is a milestone in history that ought not to pass without full notice. For when the U. S. submarine Nautilus slid out to sea for trials, it marked the first time any vehicle propelled by atomic power had ever gone into action.

Atomic engines, not needing oxygen for their operation, are peculiarly adapted to the special requirements of undersea craft.
Our civilian and military leaders have acknowledged this, for altogether four such subs have been ordered and President Eisenhower indicates his intention to ask for three more.

But the significance of the Nautilus is greater than that. The experience it and its sister vessels pile up in the months and years ahead will contribute heavily to the fund of knowledge on which we will draw one day as we adapt atomic power to more and more practical and peaceful uses.

This May Hurt

FIRST the United States slapped
stiff travel controls on Russians residing in the United States. Now the State Department is going to impose a ban on use of cameras
here by Soviet citizens.

The avowed purpose of all this is to get Russia to ease similar restrictions on Americans living in the Soviet Union. It's not that we want to make it easier for our citizens to spy on a potential enemy.
We simply want the privileges of normal movement and observation.

The privileges are among the clear advantages of maintaining diplomatic relations and attempting to stimulate reasonable good will between two peoples. Without them, we are sorely handicapped.

Perhaps the camera ban will do the trick. We have a feeling that Russians, like the Japanese before World War II, are ready to photograph everything we have—right down to the Civil War cannon parked on the courthouse lawn. This thing may really hurt.

GOP Trying to Smooth Out Party Patronage Problems

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—There has been a terrific ruckus in Washington the last few months over Republican efforts to get their political patronage machinery working better.

The storm began when a young
White House assistant, Charles F.
Willis, Jr., issued an order to all government agencies to start reporting and filling their job vacancies and making promotions
through his office.

When government agencies report to Mr. Willis on job vacancies they have coming up, they are not to be filled for 30 days. This gives the GOP patronage machine a chance to spin its wheels and see if a Republican job hunter cannot be found to qualify.

This applies to the so-called
"303" jobs for which there is no
register of qualified Civil Service applicants. Most of these jobs are outside Washington. Formerly they were filled by local hiring. Now they must be cleared through Washington.

On the higher grade, presidential appointees, Mr. Willis tries to keep the Republican National Committee headquarters informed on vacancies coming up for six months ahead.

THIS GIVES CHAUNCEY RO-BINS, director of personnel and assistant to National Chairman Leonard Hall, a chance to notify senators and representatives of vacancies in their states and districts.
The congressmen can then notify their state GOP chairmen of vacancies. They may relay the news to county chairmen. By this daisy chain, Republican talent is supposed to be unearthed.

Mr. Robbins at GOP headquarters also maintains his own file of Republican applicants for jobs—
any job. He says his file has about 2000 names in it all the time. Some 50 new applications come in every week.

Many of them are requests from congressmen or state and local political leaders. Some come from the applicants direct. About the same number of applicants drop out every week, because there are no vacancies. Many are requests for jobs that simply don't exist.

If a vacancy turns up, however,
for say a lawyer with antitrust experience, the Robbins personnel office will go through its cards. If it finds an applicant who seems to have the right qualifications,
his file is sent to the hiring agency. But it's up to the agency in every case whether it hires the GOP regular, or takes someone else.

ALL GOVERNMENT LAWYERS
ARE IN what is known as Civil Service Schedule A. Such employees can be hired without examination. The Republicans could have asked for the resignations of all lawyers who did not have Civil Service status when the GOP came to Washington in 1953, but it didn't.

How many may have been fired,
GOP headquarters says it does not know. It was up to each agency to decide for itself. But those lawyers who now remain on the government payroll can hardly be got out of office with dynamite, says Mr. Robbins somewhat regretfully.

In Civil Service Schedule B are such government employees as U. S.
deputy marshals. They can be appointed after passing a noncompetitive examination. GOP headquarters assumes that only good Republicans have been appointed to such jobs. But it has kept no records up to now and doesn't know.
The really sad story from the Republican point of view relates to Schedule C. Here are the top policy-making jobs. There were 1952 of them in government at the last count. The Republicans feel they should have them all if the GOP is to run a responsible and loyal administration.

THESE SCHEDULE C JOBS
ALSO INCLUDE confidential assistants to policy makers. That covers private secretaries, public relations advisers and even chauffeurs. But in this lower category of confidential assistant, the Republicans say they have made little inroad. All they have been able to grab off are some 250 to 300
policy-making jobs.

The Willis directive, which has been defended by President Eisenhower, is intended to change this situation. It has recently placed a number of lame-duck congressmen in important jobs. They were vacated in some cases by firing Civil Service employees, with long records under the Democrats.

This practice has been damned
by government workers all over Washington as a threat to wreck
the Civil Service and the merit promotion system. This is what will be investigated by Democratic congressional committees.

Eisenhower Reaffirms Defense of Formosa

ant told the United Press that Mr.
Eisenhower in private has declared emphatically that the United States never again will agree to curbs on its striking power such as were imposed in the Korean war.

This informant, a Republican leader who asked not to be identified, said the President made this clear in a table-pounding discussion on his need for a completely free hand in the Far East.

Chiang Reported Balking
The senatorial informant interpreted the President's insistence on a free hand as deflating speculation that the United States might be willing to trade off Quemoy and the Matsus in return for a cease-fire.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek
is understood to object strongly to surrendering Quemoy and the Mat-
sus. And he is reported to be balking at evacuation of the Tachen Islands.

Other highlights of the President's news conference:

ARMY CUTS: The proposed cut in Army strength represents a decision he reached after long study.
He said Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Army chief of staff who opposes the cuts as jeopardizing U. S. security, does not have the overall responsibility that the President bears as commander in chief. He said there has been no suggestion to use ground forces in defense of Formosa and the neighboring area.

DIXON-YATES: He does not plan to withdraw the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract. He feels that such a proposal by Atomic Energy Commissioner
Thomas E. Murray, a Democrat, seems to be drawn from a political party line.

SUPREME COURT: He feels it is unfortunate that the Senate Judiciary Committee is taking so long to act on his nomination of New York Judge John Marshall Harlan
to the Supreme Court. He said Harlan has the highest qualifications
for the appointment.

PRICE-WAGE FREEZE: The President rejected the idea of stand-by controls. He said there might be certain advantages to seeking stand-by power to freeze prices and wages, but he thinks the psychological disadvantages outweigh the possible merits. He thinks Congress could act with sufficient speed if an emergency made such controls necessary.

HOUSING SCANDALS: He hasn't received a report recently on the Federal Housing Administration
cleanup efforts. But he hopes it will be done because confidence in the agency is of utmost importance to the country.

Northernmost
The northwest shore of Lake of the Woods, which lies on the boundary between the United States and Canada, is the northernmost part of the United States.

Says Dixon-Yates Pact is Root of AEC Dissension

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman
Clinton P. Anderson of the congressional Atomic Energy Committee said today that the Dixon-Yates power contract is at the root of dissension within the Atomic Energy Commission.

The New Mexico Democrat made the statement as another committee Democrat, Sen. Henry M. Jackson (Wash.), said he believes the Dixon-Yates dispute has "cut down on the time" that the commission has been able to devote to both civilian and military applications of atomic energy.

The two Democrats expressed their views as the committee moved behind closed doors to continue hearings on the progress of the atom's industrial development. For the second successive day, the Dixon-Yates controversy bobbed up at Tuesday's public sessions.

Anderson, discussing the testimony to date, said "the differences
they have inside the commission seemingly have all developed since they got into Dixon-Yates."

Those differences were readily apparent Tuesday when Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, commission chairman, read a special statement to deny that the Dixon-Yates contract has interfered with commission efforts and especially with its weapons work. Production of nuclear weapons, he said, is "at an all time high."

Strauss directed his comment at Commissioner Thomas E. Murray
who had stated the previous day

Burglars Take $2,000 from Elks Home in Anna

ANNA, Ill. (UP)—Burglars stole $2,- 000 in cash from the Elks Home here early today. Three other Anna business places and a Cobden tavern also were burglarized.

Authorities said the burglars blew the door off the safe at the Elks Home after forcing a door to gain entrance. Merchandise worth $100 also was taken.

An attempt to burglarize the safe at Wess Jewewy's store was thwarted when the burglars released tear gas as they knocked off the lock. The burglars carried off silverware of undetermined value.

Burglars stole two guns from a filling station and got an unknown amount of cash from coin machines in a cafe here. In the break-in at Cobden, cash was taken from coin machines in the tavern.

that the commission should rid itself of the contract because it constitutes a drain on other commission efforts — including the weapons program.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of husband and father, Jessie Albert Hagan, who was killed Feb. 2, 1953. Remembrance is a golden chain. Death tries to break but all in vain.

To have, to love, and then to part is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

The years may wipe out many things, But this they'll wipe out never, The memory of those happy days When we were all together.

We think of him in silence.

His memory we often recall But there is nothing left to answer But his picture on the wall.

Sadly missed by his wife and boys.

With the announcement of district and regional tournament pairings yesterday, cage fans now realize more than ever that one fine hardwood program is in store for them come Norris City regional time. What with three Saline county teams and two (possibly three) Gallatin county schools represented, interest throughout this area will center almost wholly on the Norris City goaly during the first week in March.

It's too early, however, to comment further on the possible outcome of such a show. And, of course, one entry in the regional will not be known until district play is concluded at Crossville, the last week in February. Equality will be the only entry in the district from the immediate area. Suffice it to say that Shawneetown and Harrisburg would probably be considered co-favorites for the title at this time, but this feeling may be changed by tourney time.

We saw Harrisburg's Bull Dogs in action against Eldorado Saturday night and were impressed by their continued improvement. The Bull Dogs played well, exhibiting both a capable offensive and defensive. Eldorado, experiencing somewhat of an off night, proved a constant threat despite the fact they trailed by ten points and more much of the last half.

We thought all four teams were to be commended on their fine sportsmanlike conduct at all times and their desire to play hard, but clean, ball every moment. In fact, the tourney was well conducted in every aspect, we felt, and the Penny Polo Parade was something all four schools can be justly proud of.

Harrisburg entered the tourney with a 4-10 record, the poorest of the four teams competing, but came out on top to prove records mean little when Saline county's "big four" get together. Incidentally, those two cohorts of mine (Bill M. and Tim T.) point out this fact. Harrisburg beat Eldorado, Eldorado beat West Frankfort, West Frankfort topped Marion, Marion took Centralia and only last week Centralia smothered Pinckneyville. And up until that time, Pinckneyville was undefeated, all of which makes Harrisburg better than undefeated. (By how many points, fellas?)

Mail call the other day produced a letter from Rudy Phillips, Shawneetown's professor of water skis. Rudy is operating a ski school at Punta Gorda, and on Feb. 26 and 27 will be in charge of a water ski thrill show there. Several thousand people flock to Punta Gorda every February to witness the boat races and the ski thrill show will be held in conjunction with them. Rudy says he'll continue in residence at Charlotte Harbor, Fla., for another six weeks before returning home to Shawneetown and his barbecue stand.

Ridgway's Eagles blossomed out in the classiest new basketball uniforms we've seen so far this season last week when they entertained Shawneetown. We understand the Indians will have some new toys to show off one of these days soon.

Sammy Baugh Named Coach at Hardin-Simmons

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — Hardin-Simmons University had one of the all-time great professional stars with the Washington Redskins today as its new head coach in the person of Slingin' Sammy Baugh.

Baugh was hired Tuesday night and given a five-year contract at unspecified terms, the longest contract ever given a Hardin-Simmons coach.

Baugh had been serving as an associate coach at Hardin-Simmons for the past two seasons. He retired after the 1952 season with the Redskins. It was his 16th with the Washington team. He set many passing records during his long career that thus far have been unequalled.

Forty-year-old Baugh graduated from Sweetwater High School and Texas Christian University where he was an All-American player. He joined the Washington Redskins after graduation and never played with another team.

Bob Carney Signs Lakers Contract

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Bob Carney, former Bradley University basketball star, has signed a National Basketball Association contract with the Minneapolis Lakers of the Western Division. Carney, a 22-year-old, 6-foot, 1-inch guard, was picked up from the Ada Oilers of the National Industrial League where he has been playing since his college days.

Galatia, Ridgway St. Joseph Win Dist. Tourney Tilts

Thrilling basketball was presented to a large crowd at the district grade school tournament Tuesday night. The tourney is being held at Equality.

Two games were played and overtime play was necessary to get a winner in each contest.

Galatia and Equality battled for two overtimes before the Galatia boys took a 32-30 decision. Then St. Joseph of Ridgway won from Dorrisville 32-29 in an overtime.

Two more games will be played tonight, Ridgway meeting Enfield at 6:45 followed by Mill Shoals vs. Old Shawneetown.

Scoring of last night's games—Galatia — Jones 20, Williams 2; Beers 2, Hill 8 and Pickering 0; Equality — Wooley 9, Mitchell 8, Williams 4, Carnett 4, and R. Thompson 5.

St. Joseph—Suttner 20, Schmitt 2, Wargel 2, Cowser 8 and Abell 0; Dorrisville—Fisher 16, Brown 1, McDowell 4, Pellum 2, York 4, Oglesby 2.

Ridgway Wins Slow 35-30 Game At Thompsonville

Thompsonville bowed to Ridgway, 35-30, on the Tiger court last night in a game that saw only three points scored by both teams in the opening quarter.

The invading Eagles led most of the game. After trailing 2-1 at the quarter, Thompsonville evened things at half time, 16-16. But in the third period, Al Penman's Eagles again took the lead and held a 24-20 edge going into the final frame.

Bob Munday's quintet hit only eight fielders but made 14 of 23 foul tosses. Ridgway collected 11 of 21 free tosses.

Ridgway had defeated the Tigers earlier in the season, 61-56.

The Eagle reserves also won their contest, 48-43.

RIDGWAY—Barter 10, D. Drone 11, P. Drone 6, Downen 8, Crayne 0, Mills 0. THOMPSONVILLE — Lemmon 8, Gregory 4, Doss 12, Hodgson 2, Marsh 4, Isaacs 0.

Bearcats Win From Cave, 57-45

Sammy Miranda's Galatia eagles — beaten twice in the recent Saline county tournament — bounced back with a 57-45 victory over Cave-in-Rock last night on the latter's home court.

It was one of the biggest victories of the year for the Bearcats and virtually assured Vienna of second place in the Greater Egyptian conference standings.

Capt. Glenn Clarida led the Mirandamen in their show of power. The veteran Bearcat caged nine fielders and 11 foul tosses for 29 points.

Galatia led all the way. Ahead 8-6 at the quarter, they held a 22-18 edge at halftime. In the third the Bearcats piled in 22 points while holding the Rivermen to 14. Both teams scored 13 in the last quarter.

The victors shot 42% from the field and hit 21 of 30 charity offers.

Shawneetown Extends Victory String to 22

Shawneetown extended its victory string to 22 straight games last night by defeating host Crossville, 46-36. The Indians will entertain Cave-in-Rock Friday night.

Crossville caged eight of nine field goal efforts in the first quarter to lead the Indians 16-10. They retained the upper hand through the halftime rest period, 20-16, and were on top most of the third period.

The Indians finally overcame Crossville's slow, deliberate game late in the third and grabbed a 31-28 margin. In the final period, Shawneetown outscored its host 15-8 for the 10-point decision.

The unbeaten Shawneetown reserves also won their tussle — their 16th straight — 81-59.

Wildcats Beat Rosiclare, 58-55

Carrier Mills held off a battling Rosiclare cage team for a 58-55 victory Tuesday night. The game was played on the losers' floor.

The victory gave Carrier Mills a clean sweep of the two game series as the Wildcats won rather handily over Rosiclare back on Nov. 13, 66-47, in the 'Cats homecoming tilt.

Rosiclare, in a rebuilding season with lots of sophomores, jumped away to a first quarter lead of 14-12, but by halftime Carrier Mills was in front 33-28.

At times during the second half Carrier Mills threatened to run away with the game, building up sizable leads, only to see them melt away to a few points as Rosiclare came back. The 'Cats were on top 48-43 after three quarters and held on for a three-point 58-55 win.

The preliminary game was all Carrier Mills as the young 'Cats won 68-46.

Carrier Mills' next game is at McLeansboro Tuesday, Feb. 8.

ARMED FORCES "NEW LOOK"—One of the first things President Eisenhower would like the 84th Congress to consider is his new plan for the U. S. military. The Administration puts initial emphasis on atomic rather than conventional weapons, and this would drop military manpower, chiefly in the Army ground forces, as shown on above Newschart. As originally scheduled the total manpower is to be reduced from 3,318,000 to 2,815,000 over a three-year period. The Air Force is the only branch which will increase its personnel (14,000) during the period. Number of men in each branch of the Armed Forces is shown within bars.

Crotch turned his attention to Logan, shrugging. Ever since that morning Jamison had gotten their barges, the milling man had more than tried to make amends. He was a thin, nervous-mannered man in a gray business suit and long coat that contrasted strongly with the general male attire at La Paz. "Crotch, I dislike seeing you give that fellow Calhoun passage."

"I dislike it myself," Crotch promptly answered.

"Then why do it? At this moment, this particular time, it might be dangerous."

An inflection in his tone caught Crotch's interest. "Something wrong? You're not going to crawl on your contract?"

"No, Crotch," Sugar Logan's face blanched. "Our contract runs out in January, but you'll get a fair chance from me. This time it's John Slade who wants to see you. They sent me to make sure you'd come."

He read from Logan's manner there would be no further talk until they reached the office. Deckhands and men from the milling company were working together, hauling loaded cases from a plank shed. This was La Paz bullion that Crotch would carry to Port Isabel where it would be transferred for the San Francisco mint. The La Paz men wore guns, and rifles leaned against the treasure shed.

Logan flicked his glance at him. "Do you think that rifle shot was meant for Shelby Calhoun?"

A dry laugh dropped from Crotch's lips. "Nobody can get very far with those boxes, if that's got you worried."

"No," Logan admitted. "They can't carry them without help. Just the same, Calhoun was one of Navigation's officers. It won't set well with my company."

Logan's implication left the door wide open. But Crotch held back his questions knowing full well there would be no answers until the other man was ready. He said, instead, "It didn't take Queenie long to latch onto him."

"Mustn't be too hard on her, Crotch. I guess Calhoun helped her plenty out along the Hasyayampa. Dreyfus was trapped in a slide or shot by Mojaves. There's a couple of different stories going the rounds."

Logan's eyes flicked to Crotch. "Calhoun made quite a killing when he sold her claim for her. I have the uncomfortable feeling he salted the vein."

Logan should know, for he had been milling Dreyfus's ore.

They stepped into the office where the old whale-oil lamp threw its thick glare over the stained woodwork. Slade sat at his battered round-top desk, watching them through his steel-rimmed glasses. The mill superintendent, Hamlin Rath, was leaning against the wall. He had a coarse florid face, and he wore the ore-stained overalls of a shopman. Both he and Slade nodded impersonally.

"Last night," John Slade commenced, frowning, "there was a raid on Jamison's ship."

"Jamison's!" Crotch lifted to the balls of his feet.

Slade nodded soberly. "He's tried to hold the news from spreading. But you know how these things go—" and John Slade smiled, lamely. "It was while the Claramore was tied fast for the night. If these things can happen to the Navigation company, naturally we're worried about this bullion shipment. There's seventy thousand going down with you to Port Isabel."

Crotch stood in sober reflection. Then burst out: "Jamison wanted you to hear about it. He expected the news would make you jumpy."

"There's nothing at all plausible to that line of reasoning."

From the wall Hamlin Rath said irritably, "They were masked, Crotch."

It brought a cool laugh from Crotch. "I wouldn't put it above Jamison to rob his own packet. He's got plenty of idle crews; there's men from his San Diego loafing in Ehrenberg and Castle Dome. He's put together this raid to make you jumpy."

"Just give us one good reason why," Slade pleaded.

"All right," Crotch laid his fist hard against Slade's desk, met his look defiantly. "He's done it so you won't suspect Navigation if the General Heath runs into the same trouble. It'll be outlaws, hard-cases—maybe Indians—name your own poison."

John Slade shook his head. "I want to send six men along on the General Heath. Six whom La Paz Milling Company can trust, and armed with guns."

There was no intimation in that Crotch was not to be trusted. It was simply the desire to put more guns behind this shipment. But Crotch had no liking for land-men underfoot when they weren't needed. Considering the chill weather, there would be grumbling over deck passage, and the best he could offer were accommodations in the wood bunkers. Finally he shook his head. "We've not lost a pound of ore since we started hauling La Paz cargoes."

"But the bullion!" Slade reiterated with his face drawn smooth and tight. "You're taking a chance on that!"

"No, no chance. Crotch and company will take care of its own."

From the desk John Slade spoke very quietly. "Very well, Captain. Don't say we haven't offered. The entire responsibility is in your hands."

Two pyramids in North America occupy a larger ground area than the largest pyramids of ancient Egypt, but they are not as high. One, covering three and a half times the area of the Pyramid of Cheops at El Giza, stands at Cholula in Mexico's State of Puebla. The other, Cahokia Mound, rises in the suburbs of East St. Louis, Illinois.

Form Society Of 'Sidewalk Superintendents'

CHICAGO — The nation's sidewalk superintendents were invited today to join their own society, organized for the purpose of insuring that all "big construction jobs are properly watched."

The Illinois secretary of state's office at Springfield issued a charter to the "Society of Sidewalk Superintendents." Listed as organizers were advertising man Herb Daniels and Atty. S. Alexander Bell and W. C. Hamann.

Daniels, 40-year-old merchandising manager for Tatham - Laird advertising agency, is listed officially as president.

But his membership card shows him as "an apprentice work barge watcher."

"Work barges are much more fun to watch than land equipment," he said. "Ever see one of those barge-borne pile-drivers at work? Hot darn."

The Society of Sidewalk Superintendents, he said, was organized "mostly for fun" but it also wants to "foster the practice of daily relaxation among all Americans."

"We think everyone should pause for a few minutes every day during their lunch-hour — or even in the midst of their work routine — to make sure that any construction job in sight is being carried out properly," he said.

"But the sidewalk superintendent has a firm responsibility to return to his own work—rested and refreshed—as soon as he is through superintending."

"This isn't intended for professional loafers."

Daniels said that thus far the society has distributed 4,000 membership cards.

He thinks society members will be able to gain better vantage points for their superintending duties if they flash their membership cards.

"Documents of any kind seem to give people special status," he said. "It might even get them into the cab of one of those scoop shovels."

"Wouldn't that be something?"
